DOOMED MEN ESCAPE.

Two Condemned Murderers Out of Sing Sing.

HARRIS INVITED

The Convicted Wife-Poisoner Refused to Go.

GUARDS LOCKED IN.

Pallister Overcame the Death-Watch and Released Rohle.

WAS THERE BRIBERY?

Rohle's Brother Came Here Last Week with $14,000.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SING SING, N. Y., April 21.—Murderers Thomas Pallister and Frank W. Rohle, both under sentence of death, have escaped from the condemned cells of Sing Sing Prison.

FRANK ROHLE.
Pallister and Rohle invited these three men to go with them to gain their freedom. They refused and remained in their cells. Harris was in a nervous condition, as he was just recovering from a fit of sickness.

Pallister and Rohle then managed to climb to the glass skylight in the roof of the death-house, which they quickly smashed and crawled through on the roof.

Pallister and Rohle after getting through the glass skylight had to break through the tarred paper roof of the death-house. This was accomplished by Pallister, who was armed with an iron bar.

They ran along to the north end of the death-house and then jumped down, leaving their footprints in the earth.

They had little difficulty then in jumping from the death-house, which is only a one-story building.

the keeper a powerful blow, which knocked him down.

Pallister, who is a powerful fellow, overcame the keeper, took the keys of the cells from him and also his revolver, and before Hulse realized it Pallister had dragged him into a cell and made him a prisoner by securely locking the door.

PRINCIPAL KEEPER CONNAUGHTON.

Pallister then unlocked the cell door of Rohle, who promptly came out and seemed to have been fully aware of the plans for the escape.

When Keeper Murphy, Hulse's partner in the night death-watch, came in, he was suddenly surprised by the two condemned murderers, who treated him in a manner similar to the way in which Hulse had been overpowered, and Murphy was soon in the cell which had just been vacated by Rohle.

His keys and revolver had been taken from him, and he was securely locked in the cell in the same manner as Hulse.

Harris Refuses to Escape.

Pallister and Rohle then unlocked the cells of condemned murderers Carlisle W. Harris, Osmond, the wife-murderer, and Geoghan, the Brooklyn murderer.

"W. B. BROWN, 'Agent and Warden.'
Keepers Securing the Country.
Warden Brown also sent out all his available keepers to scour the surrounding country for the fugitives. Owing to this the keepers who were on duty last night in all parts of the prison, and who were to be relieved at 6.30 A. M., were not allowed to go to their

First Story of the Escape.
The first story of the escape as told by Hulse and Murphy was to the effect that when Keeper Hulse brought Mr. Conner Pallister's supper to him last night at about 7 o'clock Pallister suddenly threw a handful of pepper in the eyes of Keeper Hulse and then dealt clothes, as the prisoners in the death-house do not wear the prison garb stripes.

As soon as the relief watch, Keeper Dermbeck and another keeper, discovered Keepers Murphy and Hulse locked in Pallister's and Rohle's cells they realized fully what had happened.

They at once released Hulse and Murphy.

The Alarm Given.
Word was quickly sent to the house of Principal Keeper Connaughton, who resides in the old female prison on the hill opposite the Warden's office.

Warden Brown and his son Elliott Brown were also aroused, and in a few minutes the prison was in a state of excitement, although every effort was made to keep the escape from the 1,700 convicts in the prison.

After Warden Brown and Principal Keeper Connaughton received brief statements from Keepers Hulse and Murphy regarding the escape, a search was promptly instituted for the two murderers.

They were easily tracked to the shore, where they had secured the boat. Nothing could be seen of the boat or oars.

Warden Brown quickly sent out a general alarm to all the towns on both sides of the Hudson River. This message was sent over the wire from the office of State Detective Jackson in the prison.

Description of Pallister.

"Escaped last night, Thomas Pallister, alias Thomas Pallist, alias Thomas Holland, alias John McCarthy, sentenced Nov. 4, 1892 (for murder, first degree, to be executed), by Frederick Smyth.

The Defense Rests.

At this point Mr. Brooke said the case for the defense would rest.

Mr. Wellman, recalled Mrs. Ida D. Brockway, the wife of the dentist who had leased the Buchanan house, 237 West Eleventh street, and was preparing the upper chambers for the removal when Mr. Buchanan was taken ill.

Buchanan had testified that the reason why he was administering a second spoonful of Dr. McHenry's prescription to his wife when Mrs. Brockway and Mr. Childs entered the sick chamber was that the spoon was a toy spoon, and he did not more than half an ordinary teaspoonful, which was prescribed dose.

Dr. Brooke was shown an ordinary teaspoon and testified that the spoon from which Buchanan was giving his wife was about the same size.

A coroner was recalled to rebut some of the testimony of Prof. Vaughan and Schaefer.

He said that Prof. Schaefer's statement that in cases of alkaloidal poisoning one-fifth of the liver, kidneys and other organs should be taken for satisfactory analysis, was not correct. He said the chemist should take the whole organs.

In this case there were three analyses. One of the entire stomach and its contents, another whole liver, the closest of whom to isolate the morphine in order to positively identify it was not in accordance with his experience. Generally it was not possible to isolate it.

"Impossible for whom?" demanded Dr. Lauder.

"Impossible for this particular chemist, perhaps, but not for all chemists," he answered.

Prof. Borenus replied: "According to my own experience and this gave O'Sullivan the chance to repeat with much show of satisfaction."

"Exactly! In the experience of this chemist with a heavy emphasis on the word 'this.'"

Still Positive About the Poison.
Prof. Borenus said he was the poison that was found in Mrs. Buchanan's room was morphine. Then Mr. Brooke, after the manner of Mr. Wellman, got Prof. Borenus to admit that he had put in a bill to the district-attorney for his services in the trial, but the recorder would not let him tell how much more than $5,000 that bill would be.

Prof. Withaus, recalled, reiterated in like manner his testimony about the specimen by which he had frequently interrupted or interrupted some comments on the question of the trial, and when the quiet watch of the recorder.

The imperturbable young Irish lawyer, Dr. Withaus, said that there was no proof that the specimen was getting exhausted, and finally he said: "Well, you are old enough by this time to know better than to do so. Don't do it, and you will be under the necessity of apologizing all the time."

No love is being wasted between O'Sullivan and Wellman, for O'Sullivan has been a sharp thorn in the side of the successful prosecutor all through the trial, and when once again there came a half-audible comment from the junior counsel, Mr. Wellman retorted that he would not let him tell how much more than $5,000 that bill would be.

NEARING THE END.

Buchanan's Lawyers Rest the Case for the Defence.

Mr. Wellman Calls His Experts in Rebuttal.

Another Miniature Laboratory and More Chemical Experiments.

District-Attorney Nicol, fully recovered from his severe attack of grip, reappeared this morning before Recorder Smyth in the Buchanan trial, evidently ready for the final combat of orators.

The lawyers for the defense and the District-Attorney tried to agree on a plan of battle, with a view to concluding the trial today, but failed, and at 11.40 the trial was resumed with Dr. Mark H. Williams, of 247 West One Hundred and thirty-fifth street, on the stand.

Dr. Williams, who is an old practitioner, testified that he was called in consultation by Mr. Buchanan at 9 o'clock in the evening of Friday, April 22, 1892, in the case of Mrs. Britton, living ill at her home, 225 West Eleventh street.

He said that he was called by Mrs. Buchanan, and that he was called by her in his opening made much use of and on the heartlessness of Buchanan, who, he said, had let his wife's bedside while she was in a dangerous coma, and witnesses were sworn who testified that Buchanan was cursing among the saloons that night, while his wife was dying at his home, presumably of poison administered by his hand.

Dr. Williams was asked to say that Dr. Buchanan told him that his wife was very ill, and asked him, Dr. Williams, to go and see if he could not assist Mrs. McHenry and Watson in attendance upon her.

This was ruled out by the Recorder.

Another Laboratory Set Up.
A photograph of some of the alleged morphine found in Mrs. Buchanan and reduced to crystals was put in evidence, and then the little table on which Prof. Vaughan performed so many tests the other day was brought in and Prof. Withaus set up a laboratory.

Mr. Wellman asked:
"No, Vitrol will not give the color reactions in several of the tests."

Then Prof. Withaus proceeded to demonstrate to his jury the color reactions.

George Stephen Didn't Want to Annoy the Detectives.

A boy who said his name was George Stephen, aged fourteen, with no home, came to the West Thirty-seventh street station last night and gave himself up.

Five boys were arrested on April 12 for stealing $300 worth of copper wire from F. A. Klemm & Co., of 457 West Thirty-eighth street. These boys were held for trial.

Young Stephen said he was concerned in the robbery, and as Detectives Hay and Curry were looking for him he desired to save himself by giving himself up.

Young Stephen said his father was dead and his mother was in the insane asylum. He has three brothers, the oldest of whom is serving a term in Sing Sing for burglary and the other two are missing. The boy was turned over to the gerry system.

IRISH GIFT TO GLADSTONE.
A Bouquet of Flowers, with Ireland's Grateful Wishes.

LONDON, April 21.—The members of the House of Commons flocked to the House early today to secure seats for the final encounter over the second reading of the Irish Home rule bill.

Dr. Tanner, Irish Member for Middle Cork, presented to Prime Minister Gladstone a beautiful bouquet of flowers, sent from Ireland and bearing a card with the inscription: "All blessings and power to the friend of poor and distressed Ireland. May God prosper you."

POINTED AN EMPTY REVOLVER.
Inmates of a Houston Street House Captured After Much Trouble.

Detectives Hanlon and Sloane, of the Mercer street station, with a squad of policemen went to 144 West Houston street early this morning to arrest Lou Reynolds and Kate Smith, who sub-leased the place from Mrs. Amelia Celliti.

The two women were wanted on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

The officers got into the rooms occupied by the women, and Detective Sloane stood at the door keeping guard when suddenly Kapitol Celliti, the husband of the Celliti woman, came up stairs with a revolver in his hand, and putting it to the officer's face ordered him to get out.

His quick movement, Sloane knocked the man's hand aside and overpowered him. The revolver was not loaded.

In Jefferson street court today the two Cellitis were fined $10 each on a charge of interfering with an officer, and the other two women were released on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

SAYS HE IS PAT EGAN'S NEPHEW.
Albany Boy Who Is Found in the City Turned Over to the Society.

Thomas Egan, a bright little fellow of ten years, who says that he lives at 233 Grady street, Albany, was committed to the care of the Children's Society by Justice McMahon in the Yorkville court this morning. At 8.30 last night, when the storm was at its height, Policeman McGowan found him shivering on West Forty-second street, near the Weehawken ferry.

He said that he ran away from home yesterday and went to the West Shore Railway station, where he gave a passenger five cents, all the money he had, to take him to New York.

On reaching here he went to the house of his aunt, Ellen O'Neill, at 566 Seventh avenue, but found the place vacant. So he wandered back to the ferry in the hope of finding some one who would take him home.

The police found that Mrs. O'Neill had but lately moved away from 566 Seventh avenue.

The boy said he was a nephew of Patrick Egan, the Minister to Chili.

WATKINS GETS A CHANCE.
Will Be Committed Unless He Pays Up in Three Days.

Judge McAdam, of the Superior Court, today gave Harvey L. Watkins a chance to pay the $120 alimony due his wife, Annie G. Watkins, and avoid going to jail.

SPANISH CARAVELS ARRIVE.
They Get a Tremendous Reception To-Day in Hampton Roads.

PORT MONROE, April 21.—A Spanish man-of-war is in sight in the offing.

She has in tow a caravel. They passed in by Cape Henry at 8 o'clock last night and anchored until daylight in Lynnhaven Bay.

"They should be at anchor in Hampton Roads by 11 o'clock."

LATER.—The Spanish Caravel is safely arrived at Hampton Roads at 10.30 and had a tremendous reception.

At the head of the fleet was the unprotected cruiser Infanta Isabel, towing the flagship Santa Maria, which displayed the flag of an admiral, and a mile astern, came the torpede vessel Nouva Espana, with the Nina as her charge, and in the latter's wake came the cruiser Reina Regenta, with the Pinta.

The caravels were towed by at least a quarter of a mile of hawser and looked like so many ducks setting on the water.

ONE WAY TO WIN A SUIT.
Peter Hay Says He Was Arrested to Keep Him Out of Court.

When Peter Hay, of 955 Madison street, Williamsburg, was arraigned in the Even Street Court today, he loudly proclaimed that he was the victim of a conspiracy.

The complainant against Hay was his brother's wife, Mrs. Matilda Hay. A year ago the woman's home, 13 Cove street, was destroyed by fire, and as her husband was away at the time, she asked Peter to collect $700 insurance money, and claims that he retained $100 of this amount.

The Pennsylvania train, which left Jersey City at 11.30, did not arrive at this place until 5.30 this morning, about four hours late.

A fast freight train, due here at 11 o'clock, on the heavy freight Central road, did not arrive until 7 this morning.

After the tide went out, a large force of men was engaged to clear the track of fishing-nets, sand, huge logs, railroad ties and other debris.

Last Night's Storm Played Havoc Along the Coast.

Great Damage Done to Summer Cottages at Long Branch.

One Schooner Ashore and Several Barges in Trouble.

Communication with Sandy Hook and the Life Saving Stations along the coast was completely destroyed by yesterday's heavy easterly gale, and from noon yesterday up to an advanced hour this morning nothing had been heard in this city from those points.

No vessels of any kind had arrived at Quabantine since noon yesterday up to early this morning, with the exception of the Belgian steamer Rhyndland, which came in a little after 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

The steamer Trinidad, which left this port yesterday and got as far as the lower bay, was back and anchored off Stapleton for the night. She left for her destination again at 9 o'clock this morning.

The steamer Alamo arrived this morning from Colon. She reports passing off Long Branch yesterday, two towboats, one with three and the other with two coal barges in tow.

One of the barges was in a sinking condition and a towboat came up alongside and took the crew off. Another barge had broken loose from her tow. These boats are supposed to belong to the Boston Towboat Company, as one of the towboats appeared to be the Morse and one of the barges was marked the Poochonas.

All over town everything that was not securely pinned down went flying before the terrific gusts of wind. The number of umbrellas turned inside out and blown to pieces would represent quite a respectable fortune. No very serious local damage is reported.

The high winds and heavy rainfall caused much of the low-lying land in Jersey and along the Harlem river was overgrown.

The tall trees that arrived in port this morning showed evidences of the furious storm that swept over this section last night.

Liverpool April 11, reports that she was at sea of fire island at 8 o'clock last night, and that she was on the strong easterly gale and fog she did not arrive at the bar until 9.10 A. M. today.

The steamer Alamo from Colon, April 19, reports that yesterday while off Long Branch, she passed two towboats, one with three barges in tow. One of the barges was sinking and a towboat was alongside taking off the crew.

One towboat seemed to be the Morse, one of the barges was marked "Poochonas Coal."

TRACKS UNDER WATER.
Trains About Long Branch Delayed by the Tide.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., April 21.—The heavy northeast gale which prevailed all day yesterday and last night caused one of the highest tides in years.

At Conover's Cove, between Morgan and South Amboy, on the line of the New York and Long Branch Railroad, at high tide last night the water was four feet over the tracks, and delayed all trains.

The New Jersey Central train, which left Jersey City at 7.45 for Mat-awan did not reach its destination until 5 o'clock this morning.

The Pennsylvania train, which left Jersey City at 11.30, did not arrive at this place until 5.30 this morning, about four hours late.

A fast freight train, due here at 11 o'clock, on the heavy freight Central road, did not arrive until 7 this morning.
